Hello to all my Clients, Vendors and Friends this is Rob Scribner it brings me some great joy and heart felt emotions to tell you of some up and coming news for the ForeverJaden Foundation and also perhaps a little bit of some old news if you missed some of the posts on facebook last year. First I want to introduce you to a new Company called DirectNaBox this new Company was created by Myself and some of my Great Friends in the Industries that I have been working with for a very long time and this new company was put in place as a way to move products in the Veterinary and Medical Fields to help raise money for the ForeverJaden Foundation I know that everyone has had to take a step back lately with the current situation in the United States and around the World for that matter but sometimes things are taken out of your hands and someone else is moving the project forward and in this case, My beautiful, amazing little girl Jaden will not let this project stay in a holding pattern any longer she has been guiding me to some amazing individuals and gave me the strength to help many Families and Children going through similar problems that we have been going through over the past couple of years. One thing I wanted to point out that happened last year if you missed it is that Jaden's Foundation purchased a couple of Miniature Service Horses to go into schools and help children deal with some of the problems that they maybe having in their lives the little horses names are Nilla and Timmy and they are some amazing animals and the children fall in love with them as soon as they are brought into their lives and bring them comfort and a break from some of the stress that they are having to deal with in their lives as well. This one project and some friends along the way in the Veterinary Community has now started to take on a project all on its own and I am so happy to let everyone know that the ForeverJaden Foundation is starting to put together a Free Mini-Petting Zoo for Families to come out and enjoy the peacefulness of what animals can bring into your life. The property will be just outside of Albany, Ohio on a 20 Acre Farm which is just now in the beginning to putting in a 3-4 acre pond for fishing and maybe some paddle boating if things go well. This will be the first step in this project with many more steps to come but every step will be guided with Jaden's love of animals and her need to make sure everyone is as happy as she can make them. At the end of each day all we can do is to try and make this world a little bit better and more positive than the day before it.

Top Row is where the Pond is going to be

It even already has a Barn what a good start
